So far I've done the following, and it's giving me a jshint warning for accessing an id twice (which is fine), but the data is empty.

 The data is currently stored within an HTML5 data-* attribute on the element. If anyone could shed some light on what I'm doing wrong, or any ideas about how to fix it would be greatly appreciated. Note: My id's have white spaces in them due to the mobile data sheet, and I'm using the following jquery to strip them out:

var new_str 3ef4e8ef8d
