my problems with the 2100t are: traffic alerts don't work, the windshield app crashes, the app keeps crashing. i have called navigon about the issues, but they say it is a flaw in the skin and they are working on a fix. if you are like me, you are using the 2100t for navigation purposes. i am trying to use the navigon 2100t not just for navigation but also for traffic alerts. i want to keep using this product for a little while longer. i really do want the skin and the windshield apps to work for me. i went to the navigon website and downloaded the file that says this skin was created for navigon 2100t. i loaded it into a folder on my drive. i started navigon. it found it, and the skin came up. i downloaded the app that lets me upload my own skin into navigon and i clicked on the app, and it said that the file was not there. then i clicked on the skin i created, and it told me there was a problem loading the file, and that it would try to fix the problem. i waited for 2 minutes. i just deleted it. i then tried to create a new skin and there is still no skin. most of the folks posting on here are going to stick with manual navigation but i can't imagine any of them experiencing the gps problem that's been posted over and over. a simple fix. remove the factory battery. the navigon is a dual use gps. you can program the gps to route using the built in map or manual. or swap the gps after removing the battery. i do this when i install a second gps as i'd rather not be stuck manually setting up, and anytime i move the unit from one vehicle to another, i remove the factory battery (when the car is not in use) and replace with the new unit. it's a relatively easy repair. it took me only a few minutes to read through the article. i'm already looking at getting a can of freon to fix the problem.

i ordered a navigon 2100 from shopnbc yesterday. i had been using the navigon pocket loox n100 with great success for about a month. the screen is a little small for me, and my husband. this was our first navigon hand held. we bought two of them, one for me, one for my husband, one for our daughter, and one for our son and his wife. the screen is so small on the navigon pocket loox n100, that on one occasion, the screen seemed to go blank (we could not get any satellite images, but the voice would still work), and then we could get it back again. there were times it would go blank again and have to be restarted. then, when we got home, our dog would get anxious and start walking around, trying to go in and out through the house and over the back porch. we didnt know how to get him out of the house with the gps on, so that was what finally brought it back to life.

the voice was and is a little hard to understand at times, but i guess its just because the little screen is so very small. it also has loads of stuff that we won't use, so we will send it back to navigon, and ill get my navigon 2100 out of the closet. earlier this year, garmin reported that they were looking at several suppliers, and that they were going to take on one supplier. i believe that supplier had something to do with the navigon 7100, but have since given up trying to keep up with the tech news on it because the stuff doesnt interest me. they have released a new navigon fresh, but do not say what it will address. in the end, we bought a new garmin montana, but had to store my navigon 20xx. as for the navigon fresh, we havent yet received it, and wonder if it will address the routing problems. or, maybe i will not even get that. we have decided to go with one of the garmin hand helds. its getting late in the game, but we are just having to figure out what best to get.
